

There's a Psalm for This

The descriptions of Psalms are kind of interesting. They're little editorial comments that aren't usually considered inspired, like the rest of the works of Scriptures, but have also been passed on for centuries associated with these particular Psalms. They're almost like the section headings that show up in many Bibles, except quite a bit older!

These headings give some background on the occasion and purpose of the Psalm, or provide musical notes (psalms are songs, after all). But sometimes these notes don't always make sense – they don't seem to fit with the content of the Psalm. Psalm 30 is one of those examples. It's a "song for the temple [or house] dedication", but it's all about being saved by God? That doesn't seem to fit.

Psalm 30 (CEB)

A psalm. A song for the temple dedication. Of David.

I exalt you, Lord, because you pulled me up; you didn't let my enemies celebrate over me.
Lord, my God, I cried out to you for help, and you healed me.
Lord, you brought me up from the grave, brought me back to life from among those going down to the pit.

You who are faithful to the Lord, sing praises to him; give thanks to his holy name!
His anger lasts for only a second, but his favor lasts a lifetime.
Weeping may stay all night, but by morning, joy!

When I was comfortable, I said, "I will never stumble."
Because it pleased you, Lord, you made me a strong mountain.
But then you hid your presence. I was terrified.
I cried out to you, Lord. I begged my Lord for mercy:
"What is to be gained by my spilled blood, by my going down into the pit?
Does dust thank you? Does it proclaim your faithfulness?
Lord, listen and have mercy on me! Lord, be my helper!"

You changed my mourning into dancing.
You took off my funeral clothes and dressed me up in joy so that my whole being might sing praises to you and never stop.
Lord, my God, I will give thanks to you forever.

But then again, maybe that is the point. Maybe the best time to remember the thing that God has done is when building a house. We're not sure what "house" the description is talking about. It could be God's temple; it could be David's palace; it could be David's dynastic "house". Either way, house means something somewhat permanent. It's something that's built to last. It's settling down.

That sounds like a great time to celebrate the path it took to get to that permanence, and celebrate the role God played in getting us there. David is doing just that, celebrating God's role in getting him to where he is. Let's do just that, and rejoice in God's provision and salvation to bring us to where we are.
